Fallows sat. After some ten seconds he began feeling uncomfortable. What had he done wrong in the last few days? Had there been something he'd forgotten?... or failed to report, maybe?... or left with loose ends dangling? He racked his brains but couldn't think of anything. Finally, unnerved, Fallow managed to stammer, "Er . . . you wanted to see me, sir." "I said you were in too much of a hurry," Jean said to Bernard. "Just think, all that work for nothing. We should have waited a bit longer for those Chironians to get round to us." Through the gap between the officers, the diplomats moved forward and came to a halt in reverse order of precedence, black suits immaculate and white shirtfronts spotless, and finally the noble form of Amery Farnhill conveyed itself regally forward to take up its position at their head. Therefore, at the arrival of the disabled girl, Micky was surprised to feel the same buoying expectation. Discreet, this weeping. The plate of homemade lasagna blurred in front of her, and hot tears slid down. Fallows appeared surprised. "I thought it was closed off for another two days. Isn't the Army having an exercise in there or something?" "Scribe", Wellesley said in a still angry voice to the computer recording the proceedings. "Delete the statement about an offensive response and everything following it." "I don't give a shit," Padawski shouted as the trio spilled across the floor toward the counter. "I don't give a goddamn shit, I tell ya. If that asshole wants to--" His voice broke off suddenly. "Say, who've we got over here? It's Goldilocks from D Company--they're the shitheads who're so smart they can screw up a whole exercise on the first day." Colman felt the floor vibrate as heavy footfalls approached the booth. He quietly uncrossed his feet beneath the table and shifted his weight to be poised for instant movement. His fingers curled more snugly around the half-full cup of hot coffee. He looked up to find Padawski leering down from about three feet away. "It was a depressed fracture," said Geneva. "Bone chips in the brain. A blood clot." . . . that sooner or later will draw his pursuers. Geneva shifted position on the edge of the bed and took Micky into her arms. The great warmth of her. Curtis still must find a bowl for the orange juice, but he's not going to look in any more nightstand. . . right. Then the jig would be up for our friends, the ETs. "Mrs. D, you said apparently the gunman shot you." . . . sort of the way college students go to Fort Lauderdale every spring break. And isn't it amazing, really. . . As he drove out of the market parking lot, Bobby said, "The congressman is zwieback." . . . footprints where table stone gives way to a swale of soft sand. . . Another bite of pie. More joyless chewing. "I don't know." . . . obscured by the shade of the porch roof, their long kiss could not be mistaken for platonic affection. "You want a glass?" she asked. "The bottle's probably cleaner." "Has to be," she agreed as she headed. Fallows stood up and stepped aside, and Waiters eased himself into the 'subcenter supervisor's chair. "You're off. I've got a friend whose mother works most of her time there. Her name's Kathy. . . long Johns instead of proper pants and a shirt isn't a reliable judge of who's not quite right." In the Mayflower II's Communications Center, Borftein, Wellesley, and the others who had been coordinating activities all over the ship and down on the surface watched and listened tensely as pandemonium poured from the screens around them. Spacesuited figures were cartwheeling away from the mangled remains of one feeder ramp, and the exposed interiors of the cupolas at the ends of the others; all showed battle damage and one of them was partly blown away. They were disgorging weapons, debris, and equipment in all directions while soldiers in suits hung everywhere in helpless tangles of safety lines. "Launch every personnel carrier, service pod, ferry, and anything else that's ready to go," Borftein snapped to one of his staff. "Get them from Vandenberg or anywhere else you have to. I want every one of those men picked up. Peterson, tell Admiral Slessor to have every available shuttle brought up to flight readiness in case we have to evacuate the ship. And find out how many more we can get up here from Canaveral." She was in her late thirties--Te. Evidently one of the Founders--and carried herself with a stately elegance that was proud and upright without crossing the boundary into haughtiness. Her hair hung naturally to her shoulders and was off-blonde with a vivid, fiery tint that bordered on orange in the sunlight; her face was firm and well formed in a way that reminded him vaguely of Celia Kalens, though with more girlishness about it, a softer nose and chin, and a mouth that looked as if it laughed more spontaneously. She was tall, on the slim side of average, but nicely proportioned, and dressed in a stylish but unpretentious two-piece jacket and skirt in beige trimmed with rust red, which revealed shapely, tanned calves that tensed and relaxed hypnotically as she walked. Brad nodded. "But Stormbel's people are in the cupola. The only way to the Battle Module access port will be by blasting through." "That frightens you?" . . . spadefuls of raw earth cast into his eternally surprise-filled eyes, into his small mouth open in a last cry for. "Do you want us to have to drag you there?" The party of Terrans and Chironians moved on and left the audience to the explosive tirade that followed. "Those were hardly more than children," Eve Verritty murmured. . . Jesus, he thought, he was sick of the system. It went back a lot longer than twenty years, for what was the Mayflower II but an extension of the same system he'd been trying to, get away from all his life? . . . lay was beginning to feel the trap closing around him already. And none of it was going to change--ever. Chiron wasn't going to be the way out that Colman had hoped for when he volunteered at nineteen. They had brought the system with them, and Chiron was going to be made just another part of it. The long bar lay to the right of the door. In a row down the center of the room, each of eight plank-top. Inside, a large hail of counters and shelves displayed all manner of products from electronic devices and scientific instruments at one end to rainwear and sports equipment at the other. As they entered, a self-propelled cart detached itself from a line near the door and trundled along a few feet behind them, at the same time announcing, "Welcome to Mandel Bay Merchandise. Did you ever think of laying out your own garden and tending it manually? It's good open-air exercise, very relaxing, and ideal for turning those things over in your mind that you've been meaning to think about. . . as well as the soil, he-he! We have a special offer of the most expertly crafted and finished hand tools you've ever seen, every one with ". Jay grinned, just a trifle sheepishly. "Er. . . would you get mad if I asked Steve to come along too?" "Amazing," the robot replied in a neutral voice. "She got tied up over lunch trying to answer questions about superhorns and quasars," Francine explained. "Neither have I. But the idea appeals to me. And so right after he married Sinsemilla, he said that
